ATTRACTING SERIOUS BUYERS

Newsletters make for great marketing materials, especially in the real estate industry. You can use it to write a message to clients, show new listings, and share tips and stories regarding the business that people might enjoy.

Depending on the types of properties and clients you deal with, you can go with a number of designs for your newsletter. If you showcase a lot of modern homes, for instance, try a minimalist look to go with the image of the house. Dealing with more traditional properties would be suited for a newsletter that uses serif fonts and muted or neutral colors. If you work with commercial properties, especially corporate spaces, on the other hand, use dark colors and bold contrasts to emphasize the majestic buildings and offices you'll feature.
